

Verses from “Abode of Light” by Sant Darshan Singh Ji Maharaj

(Students can recite one or more verses of their choice.)

VERSE 46

The clouds, drops, rain, ocean, water, and air,
The garden, flowers, leaves, spring, and morning breeze,
The dew, moon, sun, and light,
The entire world is a reflection of God’s manifestation.
Why is life separated into different groups,
When the entire world has been created by one Light?

The world is deeply unhappy with continual strife,
Each breath is burdened with the sorrow of life.
Remove the clouds of injustice from the world,
May the breeze of peace blow in the garden with your grace.
With the Light of love, transform the earth.
Into the Milky Way
And through your glance of unity, enlighten the world.

VERSE 89

May on earth the Light of mercy and love rain,
From earth to sky, may self-knowledge
And God-consciousness rain.
On the sad face of humanity may happiness rain.
May the eternal cloud of your message rain
So that lightning transforms into flowers and dew, and Autumn transforms into spring.

VERSE 91

May talk of love be common on earth, O Cupbearer,
May the exchange of love between hearts
Be common, O Cupbearer.
May your elixir of sincerity be common, O Cupbearer,
May your beloved message be common, O Cupbearer.
May there be no conflict but only talk of peace on earth,
And may hearts be pure and the nights filled
With mercy and faithfulness.

VERSE 92

Spread the light of unity on earth,

Manifest within each heart the sweet pain of love.

Awaken sincerity within us, and Reveal God's ocean of grace.

May the clamor of conflict in this world cease,

And may all people embrace one another with happiness.
